MARRIAGE RECORDS OF LIBERTY COUNTY, GEORGIA, 1785-1895

1917315

Abstracted by BESS D. STANLEY*

These marriage records were abstracted from unbound marriage bonds and licenses in the Liberty County Courthouse, Hinesville, Georgia. The names were copied as they were spelled on the bonds, often barely legible and often spelled differently on the same bond. Sometimes the marriages were performed before the licenses were issued. The first date given in the abstracts is the date of the license or bond; the second is the date of marriage. The following abbreviations are used in these abstracts with the meaning indicated: S–spinster; W–widow; C. I. C.–clerk of Inferior Court; J. I. C.–justice of Inferior Court; J. P.–Justice of Peace; M. G.–Minister of God or Gospel.

The names of both men and women are given in alphabetical order, but complete information is given only under the man's name.

Samuel Harville was a Justice of Inferior Court, Liberty County, Georgia, for many years during the early part of the nineteenth century. His love of life and sense of humor caused him to write rhymes on many of the marriage records of that period. The following are some examples of his versifying:

The lord preserve the youths above and help them to preserve their love in union live, and when they die escort them to the joys on high.

Ah, love it is a pleasing theme the fairest ornament of time and it through all nature run from pole to pole through every clime.

Omnipenance has clearly shown
That man ought not to be alone then make a chyce and act your part Ye drone, ye indolent in heart.

*Mrs. Eugene A. Stanley of Savannah, Georgia.

A course loaf when eat at home
in love, in peace and joy is worth rich rubies of the east & all its goulden towys.

Young virtous youths when they are join they live like beasts and die like swine.
November the 19th by Candle light, the above confirmed and let all night
I took my leave, and others fled and I have no doubt they went to bed.

Lord help this married pair to dwell in gentle themes of Love
and when they die, may they be blest
With Joys in heaven above etc.

A union of hand; and not of hearts;
Is apt to cause the same to part.

Oh may they live in wisdom ways
peace and friendship all their days
And when they die may they be blest
with lasting Joys eternal Rest.

The above consumated by me the 2nd Jan. 1817.
Saml Harville, J.P.L.C.

The following sketch of Samuel Harville was contributed by Mrs. Margaret Davis Cate, of Sea Island, Georgia, a great-great-granddaughter of Harville.

Samuel Harville (born between 1770-1780) was descended from a family that moved down the coast from Virginia to Cumberland County, North Carolina, and then to Warren County, Georgia. He was the son of Joseph Harville and Susanna (Mitchell) Harville, who was the daughter of Stephen Mitchell and Celia (Batts) Mitchell.

About the turn of the century Samuel Harville moved to Liberty County, Georgia, where he was married January 2, 1804 to Rebecca Hodge. To this union were born nine children.

1. Some of these records have been previously published in Mrs. Caroline P. Wilson, Annals of Georgia. Liberty County Records (New York, 1928), I.

In 1803 Samuel Harville was named Justice of the Peace in Cassel's District, No. 17. In 1821 he was named a Justice of the Inferior Court and he held these positions until his removal from Liberty County in 1835.

In 1830 he took the census of Liberty County. At the close of the census he added this paragraph:

Liberty County is situated, lying and being in the State of Georgia, bounded Easterly by the Atlantic Ocean, Southwardly by McIntosh and Appling Counties, Westerly by Tatnall County, and Northeasterly by Bryan County, about sixty-eight miles in length and twenty-four miles in breadth with harmony prevailing among the citizens. Order and industry, with liberality of sentiments and charitableness of disposition prevails as far I am able to judge throughout the County with few exceptions. Altho this note has not been required by law yet it might not be improper or at least I hope it will do no harm. In travelling fifty-two days in this County on strict inquiry I found five old defenders of Independence who say that they were active soldiers in gaining our liberties. I mark[d] R S against their names,[2] also in writing the Rev[d] Clergy I plac[d] P for Presbiterians, B for Baptist, and M for Methodist. These are the different branches of the Christian Church in this County. May kind Providence keep, guide, and direct the Americans ever to study Wisdom, Justice and Moderation.

Samuel Harville A.M. [Assistant Marshall]

Perhaps this paragraph which Samuel Harville added to the census record tells more about him than it does about Liberty County! For one thing, it shows that when he undertook a task he did a little more than he was paid to do! Who knows but that the information he added on his own initiative which identifies the Revolutionary soldiers living in Liberty County in 1830 may have been responsible for the fact that in the 1840 Census this information was included for all the nation.

In 1835 Samuel Harville moved to Alachua County, Florida, where he died in 1840.
